

Our activities

SENASICA protects agricultural, livestock and fishery resources against pests and diseases whose importance merit quarantine measures. It also regulates and promotes the application and certification of food contamination risk reduction systems and of agrifood quality, in order to facilitate the national and international trade of vegetal and animal sourced goods.

Mission

To regulate, manage and promote agrifood health, safety and quality activities, reducing the inherent risks of agriculture, livestock, aquaculture and fisheries activities for the benefit of producers, consumers and the industry.

Vision

A transformed and modern SENASICA equipped with a legal framework that achieves health safety and facilitates trade, and with a consolidated technical and scientific platform with national and international recognition that provides certainty.

Principles

Customer and citizen satisfaction (social orientation)

To satisfy the social needs and expectations is what drives the quality and subsistence of institutions.

Quality (to do what we have to do, and do it properly)

Our daily challenge and permanent commitment is to establish quality as a culture in all we do.

Scientific basis (the foundations of our operation)

Dynamic, universal, rational, systematic, exact, testable and reliable knowledge.

Ethics (our framework of action)

The use of clear, impartial and fair rules under equal conditions, above all, is ever present in our day to day activities.

Innovation and continuous improvement (management of change)

They are the key for a sustainable development and add value in all processes and results.

Efficiency (measurement)

Obtaining optimal results for the organization, clients, customers and interested parties.

Values

Participatory leadership

Inspire, convince and drive personnel towards achieving the organization's vision and mission through active participation.

Call to service

Individuals make a difference in organizations.

Team work

It's the work structure that fosters the development and participation of all individuals and groups from the organization.

Order and discipline

We communicate a proper institutional image by preserving order and respect in compliance with standard and procedures.

Personnel development

We motivate and give recognition to the committed and result-focused individuals so they are part of our team.

Honesty

It is a way of living according to our thoughts, words and actions, and it requires being fair.
