

STEPS TO BE TAKEN:

In case of irregularities are found in the documentation you present, if they do not meet the requirements established for entering the country or there is any legal impediment, the Federal Immigration Agent assigned to the checkpoint will send you to the Secondary Immigration Check.

You will be called to an interview where you will be asked for exact information concerning your visit to Mexico, and the documents you present will be reviewed.

You must wait for the respective resolution.

If the resolution is in your favor, you may enter the country when the procedure is concluded and you have gotten a copy of the resolution.

If you are denied permission to enter the country, the reason for the refusal will be explained to you, and the company or the airline on which you traveled will be responsible for your lodging, meals and return to the country from which you came, or that to which you may be admitted. You have to receive a copy of the resolution.
