

Request the Zoosanitary Export Certificate for pets

It is free and has a validity of 8 calendar days (it may vary if the destination country establishes a different validity).

Once you consult the Requirements module, (where certification legends are available for the country to which you intend to travel), review the vaccines or treatments that you will have to administer to your pet, as well as their application period, or any other provision.

Now request the Zoosanitary Certificate for Export (CZE) (Senasica-055-001-B procedure) at any of our nationally authorized offices, with the following documents:

1. Application form: Application to obtain the certificate for the export of regulated merchandise in agriculture, livestock, aquaculture and fisheries.
Download: Form (fill by type writer or print), Filling guide
2. Official identification of the owner of the animal that will travel.
3. If the owner is not the one who processes the certificate, you must present a simple power of attorney in which the persons who are granted the power to carry out this procedure are mentioned and present a copy of the current official identification of both the one who grants the power, as well as who receives it.
4. Health certificate of the animal that will travel, issued by a private Veterinarian, no more than five days old or according to the validity established by the country of destination, with the following information:
 - Pet information: Name, microchip number (when applicable, breed, fur color (do not indicate according to breed), sex and age.
 - Owner's name and address in Mexico
 - The veterinary doctor's review must report that the pet does not have fresh wounds or in the process of healing, or any sign of infectious disease.
 - Any other specific requirement requested by the country of destination (check the Requirements module)
5. Vaccination record or document stating that the rabies vaccine was applied to your pet (from three months of age) and, if applicable, other vaccines requested by the country to which they will travel, including the following information :

- Name of the vaccine, laboratory, batch number, expiration date, application date and validity period, if it does not include a specific validity, it will be considered one year.
- 6. When applicable, a card or document that proves the deworming that was applied to your pet according to what the country to which they will travel requests, including: Name of the dewormer, laboratory, dose, expiration date and date of application
- 7. If requested by the country to which they will travel, a document indicating the microchip number, date of application or reading, as well as the owner's information.
- 8. Official or approved or authorized laboratory test results, when requested by the country to which they will travel.

Processing response period

It will be delivered to you within three business days after the business day of the delivery date of your application with the supporting documentation of the requirements established by the destination country.

Notes:

- It is important that you take the time necessary to comply with these requirements, so that you do not have any setbacks on the day of your trip, since if the documentation is not complete or correct, the answer may be a document that asks to complete or correct the information or a negative.
- The day you go to the offices to carry out your procedure, you must know the full address in Mexico and in the country of destination.
- Upon meeting the requirements established by the country of destination and at the national level, the CZE will be prepared and a first stamp and signature will be granted, it is not necessary to present your pet.
- On the day of your trip, you must take your pet to the Senasica office at the point of departure, where the official staff will perform a physical examination and if everything is in order, they will issue the second stamp and sign their CZE.
