

Report the presence of a pest or disease

You can do it at SENASICA's headquarters.

You must do this procedure anytime you become aware or suspicious about the presence of a pest or disease of compulsory reporting, which will make possible to minimize the risk of introduction and dispersal of pests of economic and quarantine relevance, and will help prevent harm to our country's crops, and control any emergency.

Immediate mandatory reporting to the Secretariat (of Agriculture) is required anytime the test laboratories detect, through diagnosis or verification, a regulated pest.

The General Directorate of Plant Health, through the Phytosanitary Epidemiological Surveillance Program makes available to you the channels to report regulated pests in case of detection or suspected presence.

Report any detected symptoms, signs, or suspicious damages in your crops:
