

MEXICAN PIG FARMERS

ALERT!

Let's continue taking extreme precautions to keep Mexico free of African Swine Fever

On July 28 of this year, AFRICAN SWINE FEVER was confirmed in the Dominican Republic.

To keep our country free of this devastating disease for pig production, the Secretariat of Agriculture and Rural Development through the Senasica, urges you to follow these preventive actions:

- Increase biosafety measures in your commercial and family production units.
- Apply Good Livestock Practices.
- Ban outsiders from entering the farm.
- Prevent pigs from being fed waste.
- Report immediately to the Senasica, if you detect high mortality of pigs or symptoms such as: fever, lack of appetite, vomiting, nasal discharge, difficulty of breathing, mucous or bloody diarrhea and purple or bruised coloration of the skin, mainly in ears, abdomen and thighs
- Request advice from Senasica to address safety problems in your farms, apply prevention measures and train your personnel, through simulations that are offered virtually to detect dangerous diseases in pigs.
