

Certification

This is what you need to certify your production as organic.

Production certification brings benefits to producers and citizens, being reassured that the food they consume is 100% organic and was manufactured under current regulations and procedures verified by Senasica.

The industry, government and society benefit from organic certification, since products marketed under this programs have their quality vouched for in order to compete in domestic and international markets as organic products that were manufactured respecting natural processes and not using any agrochemicals or pesticides.
