

Francisco Javier Calderón Elizalde is the new general director of the SENASICA

To promote responsible and expedite food trade

Víctor Villalobos Arámbula, secretary of Agriculture and Rural Development sworn in Francisco Javier Calderón Elizalde as the new general director of the National Agro-Alimentary Health, Safety and Quality Service (SENASICA).

The director is a graduate agronomist engineer from the Universidad Autónoma de Chapingo (UACH) and holds a master's degree in economy from the Colegio de México (Colmex).

He is a seasoned federal bureaucrat, mainly in the agriculture and livestock, agricultural economy, and public and trade policies areas.

As the director of Administration and Information Technology of the SENASICA he established policies, strategies, and lines of action to procure and manage public works, general services, and human, financial, technological, and material resources, to meet all the institutional goals.

As the general director of the SENASICA one of his priorities is making that the agency's policies facilitate the responsible trade of foodstuffs and help small producers to gain more benefits.

See more information at: Francisco Javier Calderón Elizalde is the new general director of the SENASICA