

Optimally using antimicrobial agents, both in human and animal health

Objective 4 involves the following strategies: establishing national policies on the rational use of antimicrobials in human and animal health to achieve a 20% reduction in the use of these antimicrobials; as well as promoting and, where appropriate, strengthening regulation on the marketing and selection of antimicrobial products and diagnostic methods for infectious diseases.