

Khapra Weevil

Pest under active surveillance

This is considered a pest of quarantine importance by multiple countries, due to the threat it poses for stored grains and dried products. Its economic importance as a pest lies not only in the damage caused to stored products, but also in export restrictions faced by countries with established populations of this dermestid (EPPO, 2014; CIPF, 2012; OIRSA, 2011).