As part of the activities carried out within the framework of the Collaboration Agreement between authorities of the United Mexican States through the National Service for Health, Safety and Agroalimentary Quality (SENASICA) and the Republic of Chile through the Chilean Agency for Food Safety and Quality (ACHIPIA), several actions were carried out to know the official and private safety schemes implemented by the agricultural sector of both countries.

Through the exchange of experiences between both nations, it is sought to adapt food export certification schemes, so that the goods exported to the US, meet the standards provided in the new US act.

Based on the requirements detected by Mexican and Chilean specialists, various support tools were created to ease the understanding and implementation of FSMA regulations for producers, exporters, professionals and technicians in Mexico and Chile.
