National Reference Center for Biological Control

National Service of Agri-Food Health, Safety and Quality | February 20, 2020

As part of the CNRCB's services, it compiles, provides and issues technical advances in biological control, with the purpose of being a reference in information and documentation, through the establishment of databases and the consolidation of a specialized library in biological control, as well as the control and follow-up of imports of Biological Control Agents and the regulations related to this technology.
