

Catalog - Services of the Biological Contaminants Analysis Department

National Service of Agrifood Health, Safety and Quality | July 28, 2023

The Department of Biological Contaminants Analysis offers the services of detection of pathogenic microorganisms in plant samples, live and inert surfaces, products and by-products of animal origin, as well as the determination of chemical contaminants (Clenbuterol) in samples of cattle fluids to all the public who require it, upon payment of the corresponding fee.

The analysis services available are described below in the catalog: